3. BACKGROUND SCOPE OF WORK & TECHNICAL SPECIFICATIONS

3.1 Background

The ARC-NRE – Agricultural Engineering campus at Silverton in Pretoria intends to establish a reference laboratory to verify (test) agricultural flowmeters according to the National Water Act (Act 36 of 1998) Section 26. The regulations of Section 26 of the National Water Act require that the water for irrigation purposes be measured, recorded and reported as promulgated. The regulation requires that all irrigators install electronic water meters to measure and report the amount of water they receive for irrigation purposes. According to the promulgation, the water meters are to be verified/calibrated every five years or as prescribed by the manufacturers. When established, the laboratory is expected to serve over 35 000 registered irrigators in South Africa that are directly affected by the promulgation. When installed, this laboratory will be the only publicly available irrigation water meter verification facility in South Africa. In addition to servicing the local irrigation sector, neighbouring countries and the subregion might also find it convenient to use the laboratory for verifying their irrigation water meters.

3.2 Purpose

The main purpose of the WFTB will be to verify irrigation water meters used by irrigators in South Africa. In the context of the current document and proposed scope of work, the terms verification and calibration refer to the same test. In addition to the regulatory requirements of the National Water Act (Act 36 of 1998), verification of irrigation water flowmeters in South Africa is important because irrigators are installing water meters produced by many different manufacturers across the world.

3.3 Existing housing facility

The WFTB is to be created inside an existing building at ARC-NRE/Agricultural Engineering Silverton Campus in Pretoria (GPS location: 28.277847°E, -25.731690°S). The building houses a sprinkler test bench and other test benches. It is proposed that the WFTB will fit on the available floor and room space and will, therefore, co-exist with the existing test benches inside the building but adequate space will be made available for its creation. There is a 20 000-litre underground water reservoir inside the building which requires minor repair. It is proposed that the WFTB will use the same water reservoir together with the other test benches. However, the bidder can propose and design an alternative water reservoir for the WFTB. A few features of the building are shown next.
